UWA Nedlands Bike Breakfast

Cycle Instead Bikeweek is an annual celebration of cycling coordinated by the Department of Transport's Bikewest and hosted by local governments, community groups, workplaces, cycling organisations and schools across the State.

Now in its 27th year, Bikeweek has continued to grow in size and scope thanks to the efforts of coordinators and participants alike who have joined in to help promote and celebrate cycling in Western Australia.

In 2011, Bikeweek attracted over 30,000 adults and children to more than 60 community and 160 school-based events throughout the state. This year, Bikeweek is running from Sunday 18 March to Sunday 25 March and the 2012 calendar of events boasting a variety of fun activities for the whole community to get involved in.

Whilst Mayor Hipkins was riding to Dalkeith Primary from Masons Gardens, the City of Nedlands had teamed up with UWA to host a free breakfast for cyclists on the terrace at the University Club. The breakfast was held on Wednesday 21 March and went from 7am to 9am.

There was a queue for the Bike Doctor, Mike Norman who was on hand giving 'prescriptions' to faulty bikes and fixing flats.

The event was a huge success with over 300 cyclists enjoying a sumptuous cooked breakfast and the hosts had many giveaways.

The City of Nedlands gives a big thank you to UWA Sports and the Department of Transport.
